

PODCAST RELEASE AGREEMENT

---

Thank you for agreeing to be a contributor for the Clicksuasion podcast and for permitting the Clicksuasion podcast to add your videotaped and/or audio-taped contributions to its podcast and archive at Clicksuasion Labs, Pinehurst, North Carolina.

Consistent with these purposes, we may use the content edited or unedited, by itself or combined with other Clicksuasion podcast content or with other materials, in any medium including literary, print, audio, audio-visual, computer-based (e.g. Internet) or any other medium now known or created in the future.

Clicksuasion Labs will also have the right to license the recorded content to others who may use the content in any medium. However, we would only permit the content to be used in connection with works or projects that we believe have educational or historical value.

Clicksuasion Labs will own the copyright to the content in each territory throughout the world (including any renewals or extensions). In addition, you graciously grant Clicksuasion Labs, our successors and assigns, the right to use the content, translate the content, and use your name, photograph, likeness, voice, biography, performances, and photographs, artifacts, documents and other personal material, provided to Clicksuasion Labs or its agents or assigns at any time by you or on your behalf, throughout the world and in perpetuity, in connection with the uses and media described above. However, we are not obligated to use all or any of the content, name or personal material in any work.

By granting Clicksuasion Labs the rights to your videotaped testimony, we understand that we are not obtaining the exclusive right to your life story, but only the rights to this particular recorded content. Therefore, you do not give up your right to write books or articles, make motion pictures or film documentaries, make television programs or appear on television shows, appear in other video testimonies for other organizations, lecture about your life or prevent you from entering into legal contracts with regard to making any or all of the above.

We thank you for your time and contributions.